MARK UTLEY is the songwriter and male voice behind Magnolia Mountain, one of the midwest's most acclaimed and prolific Americana/Roots Rock bands, with four full-band albums and multiple regional Band-Album-Songwriter of the Year nominations to his credit.

"BULLETVILLE" is both the name of Utley's new stone-Country honky tonk band and the title of his second solo album. This is County Music the way it used to be, the "working man's blues" of Merle, Waylon, and Loretta, tales of bar room nights and good timin' girls, star-crossed lovers and estranged spouses, empty bottles and full ashtrays, midnight passion and 4:00 a.m. melancholy.

"The hooks and melodies lure listeners in, allowing Utley's lyrics to sink their teeth into them. From beginning to end, this record is true Country music." - Atlanta Music Examiner
